

Family Engagement Activities

- Sending out language-appropriate monthly newsletters to families of English learners, with literacy strategies and ideas that could be easily implemented at home.
- Hosting monthly literacy events at a local library, in a campus library, or in a community center. Partner a community member with the family of an English learner for structured literacy activities, conducted in English or the family’s primary language, such as
- Hosting cultural events at a local community center, public library, or other location that is convenient and comfortable for the families in your area. These events could showcase foods, music, dance, and traditions that are important to the families served, allowing LEA staff to develop a better understanding of the community as a whole.
- Family trainings to promote literacy development at home. Consider sending a language-appropriate survey to parents of English learners to solicit the type of support desired or training needed.
- Family meetings to promote awareness and understanding of academic achievement and various district/campus program goals. Consider sending a language-appropriate survey to parents of English learners to solicit the type of support desired or training needed.
